

LEICESTERSHIRE FIRE and RESCUE SERVICE

NEWS RELEASE

Issued on: Friday 22 September 2017

SERIOUS FIRE AT ZENITH BUILDING

Leicestershire Fire and Rescue Service attended the Zenith Building in the early hours of this morning (Friday 22 September) to reports of a fire.

This is the seventh fire related incident we have attended involving the Zenith Building since the tragic Grenfell Tower block fire that happened on 14 June 2017. Five crews from across the city stations responded to the fire. Whilst the previous six incidents have been identified as deliberate ignition, the cause of last night's fire is still under investigation. However, the emerging findings suggest that this is yet another arson attack.

We are working closely with the police who are investigating all of these incidents because of their serious nature. Our specialist fire safety inspecting officers are carrying out a full review of the fire safety audit and providing reassurance to the residents who are clearly worried.

Steve Lunn, Chief Fire and Rescue Officer, said: "What is happening at the Zenith Building is alarming and extremely worrying. We are doing everything we can to make sure that the current spate of arson attacks is stopped."

"My fear is that we are eventually going to be dealing with something very serious. We are working very closely with the police to eliminate any chance of further arson attacks happening."

"I can assure you that resolving what is going on at the Zenith Building is a top priority for the fire and rescue service."

Leicestershire Fire and Rescue Service want to reassure everybody that the safety of people in all buildings is an absolute priority and we will always respond to any concerns they have.

Operational crews have already visited the block to offer advice to residents about fire safety and to answer any concerns they have. We will continue to maintain contact with the residents.
